TESDA eyes stricter scholarship allotment rules

MANILA -- The Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (TESDA) will be stricter in giving scholarship slots to technical-vocational institutions (TVIs), an executive said Thursday.

In an interview with the Philippine News Agency (PNA), TESDA-NCR Director Conrado Bares said this is due to the new guidelines or the 2019 Omnibus Guidelines for Scholarships the agency plans to implement.

Under the new rules, TVIs must generate 60 percent employment rate for their scholars, from six months to one year after their graduation. The target employment rate was previously set at 50 percent.

Bares clarified that if the TVIs do not reach 60 percent employment rate, they would not be given scholarship slots, since this will be among the criteria for them to qualify for the slots.

"This will be applicable to all private institutions with TESDA-registered programs," he added.

To check whether the graduates are already employed or not, Bares said TESDA conducts a survey (Study on the Employability of TVET Graduates) every year. TESDA is currently working on the survey for 2018 graduates, according to Bares.

"We also use a database system wherein we will now include the details pertaining to the employment of our trainees," he remarked.

Also to track the employment of technical and vocational education and training (TVET) scholars, Bares said TESDA's Scholarship Management Office requires TVIs an employment report.

The employment report shall include the employment status of the scholars, from six months to 1 year after their training.

Meanwhile, the number of scholarship slots to be given per TVI "depends on its absorptive capacity".

"TVIs submit a Qualification Map to the District Office. (The map) indicates the training programs they are applying for scholarship, the date when they plan to implement these programs, etc. This will be evaluated by the provincial director and shall be endorsed by the regional director. Once approved by the Secretary, they will be issued the scholarship grants and they could start the training," he explained.

Bares noted that under the new guidelines, TESDA will provide incentives or additional scholarship slots to TVIs accredited by the Asia-Pacific Accreditation and Certification Commission, and those with ISO 9001:2015 or with Philippine Quality Award.

Additional slots will also go to TVIs which received "star rating" from TESDA.

TESDA's star rating system aims to recognize the accomplishments and improvements the TVIs have instituted in their programs to further enhance their TVET system.

The system also aims to identify TVIs' registered programs that have surpassed the minimum requirements of TESDA's Unified TVET Program Registration and Accreditation System.

DepEd to parents: Monitor kids' digital activities

MANILA -- The Department of Education (DepEd) is urging parents to be more mindful and attentive to the digital activities of their children.

In a statement, the DepEd on Thursday made the call in response to the "Momo challenge" and other online challenges that reportedly lead to self-harm and suicide among the youth.

The agency also reiterated its zero tolerance against all forms of abuse, exploitation, discrimination, bullying, and other forms of violence against children.

"Parents and guardians are urged to maintain an open communication with their children, educate them about responsible online behavior, monitor what they access online, and help them understand that their parents and guardians are the foremost people they can trust about matters that make them feel uncomfortable, coerced, or unsafe," the statement read.

The DepEd said schools teach students that their online safety is as important as their physical safety through age-appropriate and contextualized lesson plans which helps them to appreciate the internet as a safe and enjoyable platform of learning.

"DepEd also equips learners with the proper competencies that enable them to discern online issues, threats, and information authenticity through 21st century skills that are honed across all grade levels in all subject areas in the K to 12 Curriculum," it added.

Meanwhile, the DepEd said it focuses on developing media and information literacy skills among learners from Grade 1 to Senior High School.

It also continues to strengthen the implementation of its child protection policy by emphasizing on online safety as one of the crucial components of the measure.

"While it is disconcerting that such corruption of the young is becoming rampant in varying schemes, the Department, parents, teachers, stakeholders, and the community should stand and act united in protecting the youth from the many risks associated with the use of and presence in the internet," it said.
